The Relationship Between Staffing and Census: How to Tie Staff Levels to Your Census

Many religious institutes spend an enormous amount of time trying to determine the right staffing levels for each department for each new budget year. And, what is it that ties these staffing budgets to the real employees who are working in the departments? Is there a relationship between staffing and census? Join us and learn how to evaluate your staffing budget. Staffing is not just about creating department budgets once a year. It is an ongoing process that is shared between department directors and leadership each month.
